

LEADING FROM WITHIN

SYSTEMIC LEADERSHIP PROGRAM BY

The traditional way to look at coaching and leadership is as an individual effort and capability.

The focus becomes about the achievements of one person:

The leader, that team member, the team itself has been coached or trained and with that the problem should be solved.

One often imagine, for example, that simple having a clear purpose, intention, goal or mission, will be enough.

Leaders often believe that if only they can develop sufficient self awareness to access their natural strengths, work on their blind spots and self manage, they may be able to surmount any challenge the organisation throws at them.

But often this is not enough.

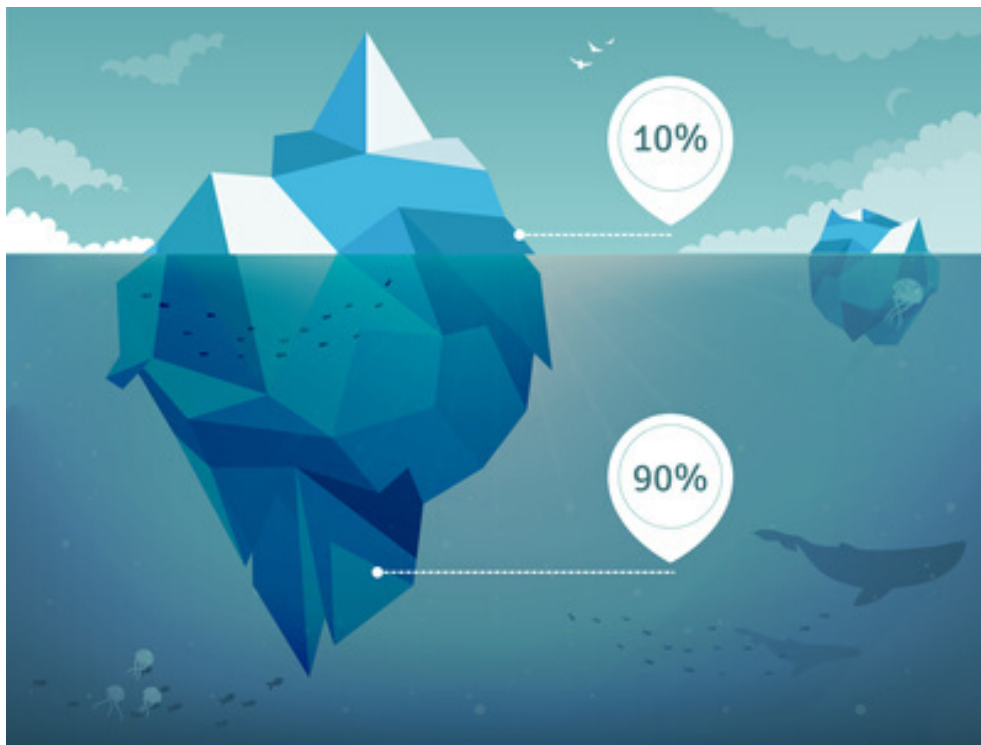

The training was successful, everybody knows what to do and for a while it goes very well. But then after a few days, weeks, the results are gone. This is because real challenges in organizations, are not in the individual issues or the people – but in the whole. The truth is that not one person, leader or member, can fix things on his or her own.

What would you say if I tell you this can be solved with a systemic perspective?

SYSTEMIC LEADERSHIP

Systemic leadership changes everything. Once you get into the habit of taking a systemic perspective, you observe leadership through new eyes.

This Systemic Leadership program is designed to gain a deeper understanding of your role as a leader within your team and organization, knowing what is really going on and how to influence with the right interventions for a sustainable result.

“They say that change won’t happen unless it’s driven by and supported from the top. In fact, change won’t happen if the system doesn’t require it for its own health of survival. ”
